

An aerial, black and white photograph of a village. A central road or path runs diagonally from the top left towards the bottom right. On either side of this road, there are numerous houses with dark roofs and light-colored walls. The houses are arranged in a somewhat regular pattern, suggesting a planned settlement. There are many trees scattered throughout the village, particularly in the lower-left quadrant. The surrounding landscape consists of open fields and some larger buildings or structures in the distance. The overall scene is a typical rural village setting.
